BLAZE DESTROYS NIGHT CLUB RUN BY AN ASSOCIATE OF BIRNEY HAVEY

Owner William Welch Had Been Questioned After Ex-Employe of Wortman Disappeared With Mueller.

A fire early today de-stroyed an East Side roadhouse operated by William H. Welch, who was questioned recently by authorities about his association with Birney T. Havey Jr. and Kenneth Mueller, targets of assailant's bullets.

Welch blamed defective wiring

The Stork Club, formerly known as the Torch Club, reportedly was owned a number of years ago by Frank (Buster) Wortman, notorious East Side gangster. Welch said Wortman has no interest in the roadhouse now.

Questioned May 19.

Welch was questioned May 19 disappearance of Havey and Mueller, former associates of Wortman who reportedly were engaging in a racing news service business in competition with the Wortman interests.

Havey and Mueller had gone into business with J. Fred Koenig, whose body was found Wednesday stuffed in the trunk of his Cadillac in East St. Louis. Koenig had been shot twice.

Tells of Smelling Smoke. In describing today's fire, Welch said he smelled smoke about 1:30 or 1:45 a.m., during a floor show at the Stork Club. About an hour later, he continued, he discovered wires burning in an alcove in the attic.

Flames suddenly burst out, while efforts were being made to extinguish the blazing wires, and the fire quickly spread through the two-story building. Welch said. Only parts of the concreteblock walls of the first floor were left standing.

If we can make that obligation good, if we can carry it out in practice, the way is open for an international community based on law and order. In such an international community, material and social progress will be within the grasp of every nation. The welfare of mankind will cease to be secondary to the grim question of national survival, and will become the primary concern of governments. In such an international community, the social and economic activities of the United Nations will feach their fullest development.

United Nations charter is the emphasis it lays on improving the standards of living of mankind and safeguarding the fundamental freedoms and the dignity of men. FORMER EMPLOYE ASSERTS HE SAW POLICE IN PLACE RUN BY MRS. LYTZ

Errand Runner Says Uniformed Officer: Were in Brothel at Least Twice, Talked to-Operator.

Henry Mullen, a part-time employe of Mrs. June Alma Lytz, murdered brothel opera tor, saw uniformed policemen in her establishment on two differ ent occasions, he told the Post Dispatch today.

Mullen, a Negro, who ran errands, collected trash and made bank deposits for Mrs Lytz, said he saw two policemen in uniform coming down the stairs in Mrs. Lytz's massage parlor at 308A North Theresa avenue in the early part of last summer. The circuit court grand jury is investigating reported pay-offs to some policemen by Mrs. Lytz.

In either January or February of this year, Mullen said, he saw two other uniformed officers in the parlor. "One of them was at the head of the steps, and the other one was standing in the kitchen door talking to Mrs. Lytz," he said.

Mullen said that on several occasions he had seen men in business suits with revolvers under their coats in the establishment. He said he thought they were policemen.

A few days before Christmas last year, Mullen said, he was sent by Mrs. Lytz to a liquor gtore to buy three fifths of whisky which she wanted in Christmas gift boxes. He added that Mrs. Lytz told him one bottle "was for the police."

"It was some special brand, and I don't remember the name, but she said she was going to send it to the police station,' Mullen said.

not indicate what she intended doing with the other two bottles. He said, however, that he usually went to the liquor store once a week for Mrs. Lytz and bought either two or three fifths of whisky.

Mullen said he had worked part-time for Mrs. Lytz since 1935, at various addresses.

He said he usually took mone to the bank once a week to be deposited for Mrs. Lytz. The bank book and money were in a sealed envelope, he added, and Mrs. Lytz seldom mentioned the amount of money inclosed.

"Only a few times did she say how much was being deposited," Mullen said. "On the day she was killed, she told me the deposit I took to the bank was $285."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Battleground for REA

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

This letter is written in the interest of the rural electrification and the public power programs which have done so much in recent years in the promotion of the welfare of our nation.

REA as an agency has adopted a lackadaisical policy toward furthering its own program. The Federal Power Commission becomes more biased with each appointment. The Department of Interior has adopted the policy that what is good for the giant electric power companies must be good for the public and acts accordingly.

farmer-owned REA-financed generation and transmission system's have been treated extremely harshly on all too many issues. At the same time the adverse treatment is being administered, numerous and eloquent public statements are made by those in control about the many fine values of the program and how efficiently it will continue to be administered. This is administrative government by subterfuge, and it is kept hidden by a big staff of so-called public reations experts.

Hence these are crucial days for Hence these are crucial rural electric generation and transmission co-ops. We say this because of the many uncertainties which con front them in being able to meet their growing electric loads. Such their growing electric loads. Such non-profit consumer-owned busi-nesses must continually be prepared to meet the electric power demands of those they serve but the problem of those they serve but the problem grows with each erroneous policy and action on the part of the Federal Government.

Fortunately, in recent days members of various congressional committees and other public-spirited Congressmen have initiated action to attempt to correct-some of the harm that has been done, such 'as the Dixon-Yates fiasco: the attempted dismemberment of TVA, and the cancellation of proper and fair contract arrangements for hydro-electric power between the rural electric co-ops and between the rural electric co-ops and the Southwest Power Administration

However, this is only the beginning since the biggest fights to get cor-rective action will be on the floors of the House and the Senate.

Mo. What a delightful experience

We were weary travelers when we stopped, but in one day we were made welcome. All the town people there are ready and willing to pass the time of day with a stranger, or wave to you if you are out on the lawn.

The cynics of this country, and I was one, should visit Marshfield and discover that the willingness to greet a stranger instead of ignoring him still exists in this good ould U.S.A. Take a ride out there some day and discover for yourself what a good old fashioned rural town is like.

Autos the Killers

To the Editor of the Post Dispatch: Over the Memorial day weekend 369 people died in traffic accidents and two weeks ago your paper pub-lished a report which stated that accidents are the number one cause of death in the age group from 1 to 15. Upon checking into some sta-tistics from 1953, I found that auto its killed 45 per cent of these children.

In the age group from 4 to 15, according to the December 1953 issue of the Kiplinger magazine, the principal causes of death are first, accidents; second, cancer: third, acute pollo. But auto accidents kill four times as many children as cancer and seven and one half times as many as pollo. In the age group from 40 and under, accidents account for 41 per cent of all deaths, heart disease 15 per cent and cancer 14 per cent. And once again we learn 14 per cent. And once again we learn that traffic fatalities cause most of

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It peeves me greatly when I read constantly about children losing their lives from rifles and shotguns. Why?
First, because we as parents or adults are negligent. Secondly, these fire-arms are not properly cared for.

Memphis Hits Back

The decision of the city of Memphis to build its own steam electric generating plant is a short-range solution to the Dixon-Yates problem. But it leaves suspended in mid-air the question of where the Tennessee Valley is to get its continuing new sources of supply for its continuing ly increasing demands for electric power.

For the Administration to proceed any further now with the Dixon-Yates arrangement to force high-cost privately-produced electric power into the TVA system would be the height of ridiculousness. Dixon-Yates would be the wrong plant in the wrong place-a plant to supply at higher cost what the Memphis plant would already be supplying in integration with the TVA system.

Unfortunately, to all the other undesirable aspects of Dixon-Yates a still further undesirable aspect has been added. It has now become entrenched in state pork-harrel politics. There is a vested Arkansas right in it-the plant would be situated at West Memphis, Ark., just across the Mississippi River from Memphis, Tenn.

Accordingly as Senator Fulbright of Arkansas argued for Dixon-Yates during the long congressional debate, so Representative Gathings of Arkansas now says the Memphis plan "will in no wise affect completion of the Dixon-Yates plant at West Memphis." Mr. Gathings sees the project as going ahead exactly the same as if it were still needed.

The Eisenhower Administration confronts again the necessity for making exactly the same decision it faced three years ago before the Dixon-Yates scheme, which the President described as intended to provide a breathing space in which to reach a decision where to go on from there. The breathing space has run its course, and some pretty hard breathing there was during it, too, but the Administration is still not visibly nearer any decision as to where it goes from here than it has been at any time in

Meanwhile, further breathing space for the Administration can only be suffocating space for the Tennessee Valley. It is growing, and requires more electric power to grow on. The Tennessee Valley Authority is the sole source of its supply. Will the Administration attempt again, as in Dixon-Yates, to force on the Tennessee Valley a costly and disruptive plan which, as the city of Memphis has conclusively demonstrated, is not wanted there? Or will it enable TVA, either by appropriations from Congress or through the is suance of revenue bonds, to finance the expanding steam generation required to power the growing region?

Those are the alternatives from which the Administration must choose. It would be a griev-ous default of responsibility to pursue any longer a policy of buying time in which to drift along in a state of indecision.

No Right to Waste Water

Is there a sacred right to waste water by running it through an air conditioner and down

We doubt it. Water resources get increas ingly precious, whether in our streams, our ground-water reservoirs, or on mountain slopes. Everybody has a stake in conserving those resources to meet the rapidly mounting demands both of more varied use and of a growing popu-

This is why we cannot sympathize very much with the movement in St. Louis county to organize opposition to the projected penalty on air conditioners not using water-conservation devices. The Missouri Public Service Commission authorized this charge, beginning in May 1957 for the specific purpose of inducing users of air conditioners to install water towers, so that water after running through the air conditioner will be cooled on the premises and reused, instead of being wasted into the sewer.

The penalty charge and the conservation of water in air conditioners are in the public in-Instead of spending time and money trying to fight the order, county citizens would be better advised to convert their air conditioners for the maximum conservation of water.

The Debt Ceiling Again

As fully expected for the better part of a year, Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey has gone to Congress for another "temporary" increase in the national debt limit. The House Ways and Means Committee approves. If the rest of Con-Byrd-the $281,000,000,000 ceiling which was authorized only for the current fiscal year will be extended to cover the fiscal year ending June 30, 1956.

And what about the fiscal year which begins on that date? Will Congress and the Administration then permit the present ceiling to drop back to $275,000,000,000, or will they again be com pelled to seek another "temporary" extension of the higher limit?

The answer depends almost entirely upon how much revenue Congress next winter votes to raise, and how much expenditure it votes to authorize. In other words, the size of the national debt will be determined, not by a figure written into the statute book, but by the spending and taxing policies which basically govern the state of the budget. In the light of this fact the annual skirmish over raising, lowering or extending the current debt limit seems rather pointless-some thing like trying to change the temperature by changing the reading on the thermometer.

Pinay Takes Germany as Is Another suggestion of a new mood of realistic reasonableness in international relations is French Foreign Minister Pinay's plea for a re united but not neutralized Germany. The neutralization idea is pushed by the Russians b might be expected to stay in even more favor with the French, considering their old fear of Germany. Yet M. Pinay rejects it.

With Gallic logic, he ruled out before the United Nations "the senselessness of a neutral Germany, for a great people cannot indefinitely be subjected to trusteeship. We must give a free Germany the choice of being associated to a system of security, including reciprocal limitation and control of armaments.

French emotion still finds it a little hard to go along with French logic. But it may be so what reassured by the Bonn Bundesrat's condemnation of the Adenauer Government for "unseemly haste" in connection with legislation for getting Cermans back into uniform. It refused approval, and the Bundestag, the lower and more decisive branch, so far also has refused to take up the bill. No doubt Defense Minister Blank will be authorized in due course to call for volunteers. But one can hardly say that be yond the Rhine the old militarists are again thundering along their old road. French acceptance of a rearmed a well as a revived Germany should be easier. What is encouraging, however, is not the debate in Bonn but M. Pinay's acknowledgement of the world as it is. This is far more conducive to real peace and security than is hysterical fear or the most idealistic hope.

String Along With Salk

In some ways, the question which a House subcommittee asked a panel of medical experts was moot. Should the Salk vaccine program be suspended for this year? The experts voted "No" by 8 to 3, with 4 members abstaining.

But the fact is that for millions of children the program will be or is being suspended. No vaccine is now available for general use. If and when supplies clear the new Public Health Serv ice standards, many communities, including prob ably St. Louis, will not use them until this year's polio season is over. And many parents, hopelessy befogged by governmental confusion and the babel of tongues, have already decided to wait until some order is restored before they permit inoculation of their children.

So it seems already established that the 6,000,000 children who have been vaccinated up to now-in contrast to the 30,000,000 or 40,000,000 or 57,000,000 variously forecast flast April - will probably not be significantly in creased this summer.

Nevertheless we cannot see that a case has been made for another great official reversal of the program on top of all the stops and starts it has already suffered. Despite the Government's having botched its role in the program, despite all the confusion and buck-passing and excitement, the big fact remains that with the exception of one portion of one manufacturer's product the Salk vaccine has been remarkably safe. The fact remains that in 1954 this vaccine passed with flying colors mass tests more rigorous and extensive than had ever been applied to such

Dr. Jonas Salk, it seems to us, has proved himself a scientist of such integrity and competence as to deserve support unless clear reasons to the contrary are plainly visible. One case of manufacturing mischance does not constitute such a reason, especially since testing standards have been tightened to avoid others. Nor is such a reason provided by rival scientists who never favored the Salk approach to polio and naturally do not favor it now.

For these reasons we believe the Public Health Service is right, under present circumstances, to reaffirm its confidence in the Salk vaccine. Still needed is what the Service failed to provide in the beginning-strong leadership for a national inoculation program as soon as possible. evitably, most of the vaccinations now must take place after the current polio season, but nothing is to be gained by the further delays that would result from a total shutdown of the program.

An Iowan Going to Russia

The 12-man American farm delegation which will pay a return visit to the Soviet Union in cludes an editor, two college professors, a food distributor and several bona fide farmers.

None of them, we think, will find it possible to improve on the attitude toward the mission by Farmer Herbert W. Pike of Whiting Ia. Mr. Pike said quite simply that he was look ing forward to the trip and that he is taking it, not so much to show the Russians anything, as to learn something from them.

Amen and bon voyage. Americans who go overseas to learn, rather than to boast or complain, are odds-on favorites to be our most effective good will ambassadors.

Universal as Well as United?

Dr. Charles Malik of Lebanon hopes the representatives now in San Francisco will try to make the U.N. truly universal, a forum for all the world. In the last 10 years U.N. membership has gone up from 50 to 60, but a number of important governments are still outside the fold. The United States in the past has proposed member ship for some of these, the Soviet Union for others. Nothing happened because of the veto.

Even the United States delegate, Ambassador Lodge, now favors abolition of such use of the veto. This would not mean automatic admission for any applicant, but it would mean an end to automatic exclusion. There would be a vote. The chief difficulty here is Red China. But the Philippines' Dr. Romulo has a formula for voting on a new member, but of deciding whether the credentials of Nationalist China or Red China should be honored. Of course, it is a question whether the Communist members could be persuaded to agree to such a by-pass.

But surely such nations as Spain, Ireland West Germany, Japan, Italy, Bulgaria and Rumania should be participants in U.N. discussions since they are involved in U.N. decisions. The Swiss also should join. The Charter does confine membership to "peace-loving nations." This is a reminder that the international organization was brought into being by the partners on one side Yet the U.N. never meant to be an alliance, or an instrumentality of one group of governments. Even if this had been the original intention, it was demonstrated long ago that its chief value is that it can bring opponents together other than at gun-point

Nobody seriously conceives of the U.N. as a universal world government. Sovereignty and rulership are not in its nature. But its function certainly is the achievement of universally accepted-even if not universally approved-solutions of international disputes. And this is not fully possible so long as it is not universal.

If the second San Francisco meeting can make so, this gathering will be almost as important as the first coming-together at the Golden Gate.

What Is What?

Truly the ways of international understanding are hard. Scarcely had we finished explaining to the English, apropos the Princess Margaret Danny Kaye episode, that Americans do not call all women "honey," when a new trouble spot cropped up among the Germans. Dr. Erwin Hamm, in charge of the swimming pools at Munich, was defending cartoons of bathing beauties advertising a new city pool, which a city coun cilor had criticized as displaying "too little ad-

"What is sex?" asked Dr. Hamm; and answering himself, "Sex is a fashionable American expression." It is nice of Dr. Hamm to say so, but, really, he is too good. We had thought it was a bit more than that, and shall, in fact, continue to think so. Nor shall we defer to the probable claim by the Soviet Union that sex is an inven tion of a worthy Bolshevik dating from the early days of the Revolution.

We shall merely content ourselves with ob serving that Dr. Hamm not only isn't on the right track, he isn't even on the right railroad.

Desegregation in Little Dixie

The following report comes from a teacher in Slater, a town of 2900 in Saline county:

"A few years ago anyone would have doubted that integration could work so smoothly and so rapidly in Little Dixie. There was an impression among some of the leading business men that the Negroes preferred segregation and felt that their children were better off in separate schools. This interpretation has proved to be false.

Dr. Scheele and the Public Health Service have tried to pin a large part of the responsibility on Dr. Salk's original formula, which they suggest was unsuited for mass production of vaccine.

Dr. Salk says it wasn't the formula that was faulty, but the safety standards imposed by Dr. Scheele's department.

And the drug firms are anxious to disclaim any responsibility on their part. It still seems to us that the censure must be split four ways.

A share goes to Dr. Scheele and Secretary Hobby for failing to exercise close enugh supervision over the proretary Hobby for failing to exercise close enough supervision over the production and testing of vaccine supplies. The drug firms are at fault for failing to notify Washington that use of the Little Dixie community that is ending high school segregation. All Negro students from Marshall formerly made a 60-mile round trip to Sedalia every day. Nine of them now attend the Marshall high school and have been totally accepted into the life of the school. Sixteen Negroes are still transported to Sedalia, but integration is to be completed next year. The Catholic high school in Marshall, Mercy Academy, has had a Negro girl enrolled for three years.

"A Korean war veteran has become the first Negro student at Central College in Fayette, in adjoining Howard county. Five Negroes attended last year's summer session there.

"The good racial relations that have prevailed in our schools during this period already have begun to have an effect in adult relations and everyday life. The Slater Ministerial Alliance has held two inter-racial meetings and in February it included all churches in an evangelistic meeting. Negroes and whites sat where they pleased throughout the school auditorium where the evangelistic meeting was held."

Few eating places in Little Dixie will serve Negroes, and this sometimes cre-ates problems for school groups. While the United States is richly endowed with natural resources, modern technology requires an increasingly large selection of raw materials which must be imported. The increasing dependence on foreign supplies of many sendence on foreign supplies of many assential industrial materials is not so much a sign of weakness as a challenge to our leadership. It calls for serious improvement of our skills in internaimprovement of our skills in interna-tional relations and a general lowering of trade barriers.

All in all the outlook is rosy. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of President Eisen-hower's Council of Economic Advisers, and formerly on the faculty of Columbla University, takes the position that the former president of Columbia Uni-versity and now President of the United States has been building an economic program that virtually eliminates major business fluctuations.

Although the experts may not all agree that the menace of the business cycle is a thing of the past, there is universal agreement on another point. Rapid increase in the well-being of all the people will depend relatively little on economic policies. Political and military decisions will overshadow all the tary decisions will overshadow all the others. And there's the rub.

Giants' Ruben Gomez Throws Free-Swinging Cards Into 1-0 Reverse

Poholsky's 3-Hitter Spoiled by Lockman

By Bob Broeg

Busch Stadium, where the Cardinals' strong lefthanded-hittling lineup was handcuffed by a slender New York righthander, Ruben Gomez.

Gomez came upon the Cards under circumstances fortunate for him. The young Redbirds had hammered a few out of the park in the Philadelphia series and were flexing their muscles, ready to belt Ruben right back to Puerto Rico. Silly boys.

The harder the Cardinals swungs the more those left-handed hitters tried to pull for the nearby pavilion, the less chance they had against the pitch that broke down and away from them. And the finest screwball seen in these parts since Harry Brecheen's prime resulted in the Redbirds' fifth shutout defeat.

Tragically, a ball club that couldn't win earlier this week with eight and six runs lost this time by the smallest of scores. I to 0, because a fourth-ining homer onto the right field roof by Whitey Lockman provided the only run of the game.

Lockman, hitting a "2-2" change-up, pinned defeat on Tom Poholsky, who yielded only three safeties, walked just on the batter and struck out six. The homer was the eighth allowed in 2935 innings this season by the seldom-seen scholar originally tabbed by Eddie Stanky as one of the deposed manager's properties. of the deposed manager's Left-New Y

The damaging home-run ball habit limited Poholsky to two starts under Stanky in six weeks and he has had just three under Harry Walker in nearly four weeks. But he impressed The Hat, who was even more sold on Gomez's performance.

"That," he said, "was the best pitching job I've seen since I came back up here. He was really sharp."

Mrs. Fouke Loses, 4-3, In Final

By Robert Morrison Newly-wed Marilyn Herpel Conroy today had more silver-

Conroy today had more silverware and stuff with which to set up housekeeping and also the good feeling that her bad luck in women's district golf is a thing of the past.

The 25-year-old daughter of the Algonquin pro, Homer Herpel, copped the top prizes in the St. Louis Women's championship yesterday when she outplayed the surprising challenge of St. Louis Country Club's Mrs. Lucien Fouke and won, 4 and 3.

It was Mrs. Conroy's second consecutive district title after many years of bad luck in the event which she otherwise might have won earlier in an amateur career that began as a child. She also was the standout medalist in this tournament.

Trouble, Trouble.

Once, a few years ago, she pulled the muscles in an arm and failed. Another time she had a bad sore throat that stopped her. And before that there was another predominant player that kept her from winning.

This time it appeared that Mrs. Conroy was going to encounter unexpected trouble in the person of Mrs. Fouke, a mother of three and herself a daughter of a one-time standout woman golfer, Mrs. John N.

Mrs. Fouke overcame putting Ress trouble and a three-down handicap to take a three-up lead through the first 16 of the morn-Robing rounds.

through the first 16 of the morning round.

But Mrs. Conroy, who was being out-driven, pulled herself together and holed out a tough 10-foot birdie putt at No. 18 to be only two down after the morning round. Then she stepped out to a two-up lead in the first nine holes of the afterpoon round.

star was on hand, in a gallery of 100 or so, in the hope of seeing another Country Club champion. But Mrs. Fouke who had shot the morning round in wom-en's par of 75, lost her putting touch and began to zig and zag a bit in the fairways in the afternoon round. As a result, Mrs. Conroy, shooting even par in the afternoon, steadily overcame the two-down handicap and moved ahead. a bit in the fairways in the aft-

Marilyn was out in 37, one under par, in the afternoon, winning five holes through that stretch while Mrs. Fouke won the putt for a birdie three.

Both finalists said they expected to compete in the Women's State tournament at Kansas City starting July 18. Mrs. Konroy will be the defending champion. But that, she said, probably will be her only other tournament of that caliber this season.

WARNS U.N. OF OVER-OPTIMISM

Canadian Proposes Hard Realities Instead of Grandiose Hopes in Peace Efforts.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 25-Hopes for a break in the international logjam were so prevalent at the closing United Nations commemorative gathering here that one top diplomat was moved to warn strongly against over-optimism.

L. B. Pearson, secretary of state for external affairs for Canada, told the delegates at the Opera House that the "ghosts of past memories" evoked in the auditorium, where the U.N. Charter was signed 10 years ago, were present to warn against such over-optimism.

These ghosts, he declared, also were there to warn against the danger of trying to build an international structure of peace upon grandiose but shadowy hopes instead of hard realities.

"No man is the poorer—though he may be the sadder— "No man is the poorer—though he may be the sadder—for being shorn of his illusions," for being snorn of his illusions, said Pearson. "We have lost some of ours, about the U.N., but not, I hope and believe, our faith, our principles and our ideals."

'Balance of Terror.'

The "balance of terror" has replaced the "balance of power," he said, because of the prospect of mutual annihilation in any new world war. That, he said, is not a comfortable or strong or permanent foundation for security.

"Peace rests uneasily on one, even less easily on two, hydrogen bombs," he asserted. "It is a tragedy our first 10 years that it has found no better resting place."

The Canadian leader, althoughthe tone of his talk was moderate, needled the Soviet Union for its propaganda tactics in the past and declared that if there were more action for peace were more action for peace there might be less need to talk there might be less need to talk, so much about it. The public here and abroad has become more skillful in detecting false peace-fronts, he said, when the U.N. is used as a forum by nations to parade their policies. for propaganda purposes.

Diplomary by "juud-speaker" for propaganda purposes.

Diplomacy by "loud-speaker" or by "insult" is not so good, he went on. Even such excesses, he said, tend to disappear as "governments come to realize that their ends are not attained by crude and tough talk, by name calling or abuse, by legal quibblings or by procedural wrangling; by twisting and torturing the meaning of words."

This last practice, he continued, has had a confusing and damaging effect on U.N. debates.

Words Turned Upside Down.

Words Turned Upside Down. "Too many words of respect-

"Too many words of respect-able parentage—democracy, co-existence, freedom, appease-ment, human rights, popular, and, above all, peace-loving— have been turned upside down and inside out and made to seem what they are not," he "What we need," he added as

"What we need," he added as the delegates laughed and ap-plauded, "is a convention for the defense of peace-loving words against verbal aggres-sion."

Fears and mistrust keep East and West apart he declared and West apart, he declared, fears that may be strong and genuine on on both sides. It is this that endangers the world and mere repetition of the word 'peace' will not remove the fear. Because of such distrust and fear, a collective security sys-tem became essential for the west, he went on, and "our unity in this regard cannot be unity in this regard cannot be shaken by untrue and unwar-ranked allegations that such arrangements are aggressive and provocative." Echoing French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay, he said the west will not abandon NATO, because such security systems are not a spearhead against Russia.

"They are a shield against aggression itself from any state," he said. "We will not and dare not abandon them until our security can be assured til our security can be assured on a broader, better basis by the U.N., or until peace rests U.N., or until peace rests something even stronger than force of any kind."

LOSER

Living in a temporarily shattered world, Dick Hickman struggles with tears while attempting to be a good loser after disaster hit him in the finals of the national marbles championship at Asbury Park, N. J., yesterday. Dick, 10 years old and from Huntington, W. Va., bowed to age and experience when he played 12-year-old Ray Jones of Pittsburgh, Pa., for the title.

SHIPYARD GRANDSTAND

Maze of scaffolding in shipyard at Glasgow, Scotland, offers choice seats for workers who watched the launching of the new Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain last Wednesday. The sleek new 640-foot craft was eased into the River Clyde after being christened by Queen Elizabeth. It takes the place of an earlier Empress of Britain which was sunk by the Germans in the early days of World War II.

Kinley bridge through which two men fell 75 feet to the ground early today. The men, Raymond Linder, 4095 Concordia avenue, and Arthur O'Keefe, 5234 Blow street, suffered serious in-juries in the fall, which came as they stepped out Linder's automobile in darkness to check on a possible flat tire. As a companion, Cleo Phillips, 3961 Westminster place, was seeking help from passing motorists, an-other machine skidded into Linder's automobile, causing Coping with tragedy, E. V. Kennedy attempts to maneuver his boat into position to rescue his son, Joe, who was trapped when the canoe at center overturned Thursday in the Boise river near Boise, Idaho. Kennedy struggled upstream several times but each time he attempted to drift back to the cance his boat got caught in swift currents and was carried to one side. The boy's body was recovered when an automobile wrecker lifted the cance from the stream. -Associated Press Wirephote

Horenstein, Sirota Share Honors With Weber's 'Konzertstuck.

By CHARLES MENEES

he Little Symphony's third cert of the summer was given concert of the summer was given last night at the Washington University Quadrangle after threats of rain disappeared in a half-hearted sunset. An audience of about a thousand persons defied the cool, damp outside and heard an enjoyable program, even if it was a trifle too long. Instead of stars for the music to be played under. the music to be played under, there were low clouds, punctu-ated occasionally by a sliver ere two persons with one mind the performance of Weber's play passages with ampie dash and dead-eye accuracy. And Horenstein matched the calm certainty as he kept the accompaniment in proper balance. For encores, Sirota played the seldom-heard C Sharp Minor Nocturne of Chopin and the Sixth Hungarian Rhapsody of Liszt.

sonant harmonies into music that is refreshing. Particularly enjoyable structurally is the concluding fugue. It was evident that the symphony-difficult music in spots had been well rehearsed.

Mozart's D. Major Divertimento (K. 334), originally written in six movements for string quartet and two horns, was played in its four-movement version for "small orchestra. Horenstein hewed to the style of the music, employing neither fuss nor artificial dynamics. Concertmaster Francis Jones gave an expert stamp to the salos in the last two movements. The concert concluded with Stravinsky's Suite No. 1 whose four short movements, except for some rhythmical fuzziness now and then, were fun to hear.

NEWARK, N.J., June 25 (AP)

The federal government yesterday assumed control of Linwood Park, Inc., a Fort Lee housing project which was accused of reaping "windfall" profits.

The action by the government, based on a United States district court ruling last month, set a pattern for its recovery of the profits on government-insured housing projects throughou the country.

Two of Linwood Park's three members of the board of directors were ousted by representatives of the federal housing administration, and replaced with

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha

AM 17 years old and last summer I met a boy who is now in the Marines and we have been corresponding ever since. Around Christmas time last year he wrote and asked me to go steady and I answered that I was too young and asked him to try to forget me. From then until about a month ago I tried to forget him but it I received a letter asking me to go steady again. I realize now I can never forget him. Please tell me what to do about answering his letter.

titude of the Russians but we welcome it not because we are fooled into believing that it means their ultimate objectives for a Communist world have changed. I give them full credit for believing that a Communist world is the best kind of world to live in. If they are ever really troubled about whether the people whom they rule are happy If he's the kind of boy your parents approve of, I see no reason to forget him or put him out of your life, but neither do I see much sense in your going steady with someone who will be out of town. You'll seldom see him, yet you will have promised not to date anyone else. Tell him you want to keep on writing and to see him when you can but you'd still rather not go

Dear Martha:

I HAVE JUST COMPLETED my junior year in high school and have been dating a girl who graduated from the eighth grade in May. Some friends seem to think she is too young for me to date. She is 13. WONDERING.

troubled about whether the people whom they rule are happy under this domination, they salve their consciences with slogans and words with which we are very familiar. The Russians say: "The people are not as yet ready to know what is really best for them. The Government cannot afford to allow them freedom as yet, though that is our ultimate objective. First we must be sure that all the benefits of a Communist world, however, will come to them eventually. So we must extract funds to fight the capitalist world by keeping the people at a low standard of living. They must sacrifice temporarily, for their future prosperity, security and happiness." Frankly, I think she's pretty young to be dating anyone very often, but I realize that few 13-year-olds will agree with me. I personally believe that you would be happier going with a girl who at least can participate in some of your school activities rather than an outsider. Part of the fun of going together in school is your common interest in school and your mutual friends among your classmates.

THE PICTURE of the world in which all will share and share alike is constantly kept before the people who do the sacrificing. And we know that, given a few signs of progress—education, for instance—which the Kremlin has emphasized in these first years, people will continue to live on hope for a very long time, and will continue to better that something marvelous is just around the corner if only * * * IN ANSWER TO Miss X: As long as this boy isn't going steady with another girl, there's no reason not to invite him to the party even though he hasn't asked you for a date. But if he turns you down without a good excuse, don't ask him again.

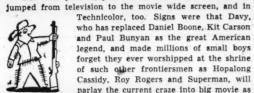

Entertain the crowd this summer with a picnic or scavenger hunt. Martha Carr's free leaflets will give you ideas for entertainment. Please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

of such other frontiersmen as Hopalong Cassidy, Roy Rogers and Superman, will parlay the current craze into big movie as well as merchandising business and the picture will run for Walt Disney has compressed the three hour-long TV features into a 90-minute film and called it again, "DAVY CROCKETT, KING OF THE WILD FRONTIER." While I wouldn't dare to subject it to my usual acid critical dissection-I have three small sons myself, and after all, I have to live—I can report it is good, rousing adventure stuff, aimed at the juvenile level. It is mighty purty in Technicolor and the wide screen gives the film a sharp definition and scope it didn't have in the jammed confines of the comparatively tiny TV screen. The early backgrounds, taken in the Great Smokies, are much more striking than those in the final Texas sequence, where the defense of the Alamo is so patently done on an indoor stage.

In a sotto voce aside to adults, the film doesn't compare as a production to other romantic adventure efforts of the Disney studio, such as "Rob Roy." Its characters, aside from Davy, are obvious stereotypes. A blustering major is made straight man for Davy when he makes fools of the stumblefoot soldiers in the Creek Indian war in 1813, and later the major turns up, in civilian clothes, as the villain of Davy's career in Congress (not indicated as the real three terms.) There is Buddy Ebsen as the traditional faithful buddy, and Hans Conreid as a cowardly gambler with the bombast of a W. C. Fields in the Texas sequence. One of the things that only a child would swallow is Davy's invading the camp of the ferocious Creek chief, Red Stick. (played by that old Indian, Pat Hogan), rescuing his buddy from the stake by challenging Rec Stick to mortal combat with tomahawks, and quoting the Ten Commandments to explain why he didn't split Red Stick's ugly skull when he had him down. The battles sequences are done on an obviously economical scale for a movie.

Fess Parker, however, is about perfect as Davy. The gangling Texan, who most reminds us of Jimmy Stewart, projects nicely that easy backwoods sense of humor for which Davy was renowned, and makes the character seem real through all the trappings. He seems to us to be a sure bet for a big star. Of course, Davy, as befitting any legendary hero, is ageless. You would never guess from the film he was 50 years old when he fell at the Alamo. Of course, no hint is breathed that Davy, though a mighty hunter, was a shiftless farmer, and prided himself on his lack of education, saying-horrors-that correct spelling was "contrary Or that the Alamo, heroic as was its defense, took place as part of one of a greedy territory grab from

In the actual case, if West didn't go up with the spade queen, he would lose it, and South would easily bring home the contract, giving up only one club and two hearts. But if the second situation existed, West would wreck the defense by going up with the queen—East's 10 would fall and his king would drop nextime, under South's ace. It was no great discredit to West that he ducked, playing for the situation that didn't happen to exist, but of course that ducking play gave South the contract.

Mercury Falls After Heavy Rainfall

The heaviest rainfall in nine months was recorded in the last 24 hours, as 1.57 inches fell in the downtown area during the period ended at 8 am, today, Meteorologist Harry F. Wahigren said. This was the heaviest rain since 4.18 inches fell on September 19-20, 19-54. Several county communities reported marks higher than the downtown reading.
